

What happens if you move to another state while on a DMP?

by David C. Jones, Ph.D., president AICCCA

If you have a Debt Management agreement with a national agency, the move will likely be without any issues. Just be sure to keep the agency informed about your new contact info. However, if you are with a local agency or one that is not licensed in the new location, there could be some issues.

Be proactive. Speak to your credit counselor and get some advice about what you need to do as you complete your move. The counselor will help but here are some things to consider:

1. Will it be necessary to sign up with a new agency that is licensed in the new location?
2. Will it be necessary to change the payment dates? Remember that there are legal limits on the number of times an account can have the due dates changed so check into that issue right away.
3. Will the new agency have different fees or requirements that you may have to consider?

Above all, don't ignore your Debt Management Program; a few minutes of planning before you finish packing will keep everything on track and your credit rehabilitation alive and well.
