XI COMMON OWNERSHIP and/or CONTROL of THIRD-PARTY SERVICE PROVIDERS

1. A member must avoid the appearance of a conflict of interest in all decisions involving third-party providers of goods and services to the member.
2. A member may subcontract a non-core member activity to a third party as long as no non-independent trustee, family of a non-independent trustee, or paid officer of the member has an ownership interest in the third party other than a non-controlling interest in a publicly traded company.
3. A member may not subcontract a non-core member activity to a third party where an independent trustee of the member has an interest in the third party unless: the trustee discloses such interest to the member's board of trustees and recuses himself/herself from the decision processes related to the third party. In addition, the transaction must either be for a nominal or otherwise insignificant amount; and the transaction was made at or below market rate.
4. A member may not outsource or subcontract any core activity except to an organization that has received a determination of tax-exempt status from the IRS and complies with the standards set forth in this document.

Member is defined as a licensed credit counseling or debt management service provider that maintains all required licensing with all requisite bodies in every State it provides counseling services.

Core activities of a member are defined as education, consumer credit and debt management counseling, and related debt management consumer services that are not related to payment processing.

Non-core activities of a member are defined as all other activities that are not core activities.

Independent Trustee is: a trustee who is not employed by a member or by an affiliate of a member; and who is not employed by an organization or business that will receive a direct financial benefit from the outcomes of counseling sessions or the business activities of the member, such as a credit grantor, collection member or third party contractor (other than a third party contractor performing non-core activities for compensation that is nominal or otherwise insignificant, or priced at below market rates).

Non-Independent Trustee is a trustee who is employed by a member or by an affiliate of a member or by an organization or business that will receive a direct financial benefit from the outcomes of counseling sessions or the business activities of the member (unless such organization or business is a third-party contractor performing non-core activities for compensation that is nominal or otherwise insignificant, or priced at below market rates).

Family Member is defined as a spouse, parent, child, sibling, in-law, wherever they may reside, as well as any person(s) sharing the same living quarters in an intimate, personal relationship.

(Intent of Section XI: Disclosures of improper arrangements between some non-profit credit counseling agencies and for-profit service providers have the potential to undermine the trust of the public in credit counseling. The goal of this Standard is to ensure that the member adheres to the highest possible standards when dealing with third party and for-profit service providers. Even the slightest appearance of a conflict of interest should be avoided. The subcontracting of non-core services from member insiders must be conducted on an “arm’s length” basis. An independent trustee of the member is only allowed to be financially involved with a third-party contractor that receives compensation for non-core activities or services if the amount of financial involvement is nominal or otherwise insignificant or priced at below market rates. The determination of whether an amount is insignificant should be based on the facts and circumstances of the transaction. While this statement of Intent is only to be used in interpreting and enforcing Section X, Section X may be considered in the interpretation and understanding of related concepts contained in other Sections of these Standards and Best Practices.)

XII INTERPRETATION OF STANDARDS

A majority vote of the Board of Directors shall be the final determinant as to whether a member is in compliance with these Standards.
